

I would like to welcome everyone to the newest edition of the Journal of Theoretical and Philosophical Criminology. As we begin our third year publication, I am pleased to inform you that readership and interest in jtpcrim continues to grow. We have just published our first special edition of the journal, which featured an article by Heather Bersot and Bruce Arrigo and plan to publish a second special edition in spring or early summer of 2011, which will focus on the work of graduate students in Criminology and Criminal Justice. We also plan to publish on a regular basis subsequent special editions of the journal that will focus on a specific topic or featured article in criminology, criminal justice or offender treatment.

I would also like to welcome and introduce Dr. Jennifer Grimes as the new book review editor for jtpcrim; if you have any questions concerning the book review process, please feel free to contact her at Jennifer.Grimes@indstate.edu.

Thank you again for your continued support.
